

Dayna Eidle

Lab 4

Operating Systems

October 16, 2018

1. What is the relationship between a guest operating system and a host operating system in a system like VMware? What factors need to be considered in choosing the host operating system?

- The host operating system is where the virtual machine is running from and the guest operating system is running from the virtual machine. The factors that need to be considered when choosing a host operating system are what applications are going to need to be run, what the project is, and possibly the amount of file sharing between the host and the guest.